Copenhagen, March 11. N. S. Lieutenant-General Weebe, Vice-Stadtholder of Norway, is lately dead, but no one is yet named to ſucceed him in that Employment. The Daniſh Lieutenant-Colonel Bibau, who was taken in a late Action between a Party of Horſe under his Command, and a Body of the Swedes, has been ſent back on his Parole: He highly commends the Humanity of the Swedes, and particularly of Major-General Meyerfeld, for the great Care he has taken, that ſuch of the Daniſh Priſoners as are wounded, may be ſupplied with all manner of Neceſſaries. Feldt-Marſhal Wedel is not yet arrived. General Reventlau is ſomewhat recovered ſince he was brought hither, but is not yet entirely out of Danger. An Expreſs arrived here laſt Night, with Advice that the Swedes had Yeſterday Morning attacked the Daniſh Army; that the Action had been very bloody on both ſides, and was not quite ended when this Expreſs left the Army, which was about four a Clock in the Afternoon: But that the Danes were then giving Ground, and had loſt many Officers. Lieutenant-General Rantzau, who commanded the Daniſh Army, was wounded on the Breaſt, and on the Arm, and is brought to Elſinore. We expect other Expreſſes to bring further Particulars of that Action. The Perſon that brought this News Yeſterday not being an Officer, has not given a very diſtinct Account of the Engagement. Lieutenant-General Cormaillion, Governor of this Town, is ſent to command the Army. The King is gone this Afternoon to Elſinore.
